Recycled the capital from one maturing, and several other well performing structured products, into higher yielding rate accruals. These positions were purchased to provide capital protection and an attractive annual income. Within equities, adjusted our UK and European equity allocations towards a more defensive stance. Finally, increased our overall allocation to fixed income.

Commentary

In May, global markets continued their pronounced divergence as rampant retail-driven optimism in AI clashed with institutional caution over persistent inflationary pressures and geopolitical instability. While major indices reached record highs, underlying economic data remains concerning with supply chain disruptions expected to persist despite the intermittent hopes for a peace deal. Politically, the UK faced another roadblock as Prime Minister Kier Starmer's leadership came under threat following poor local election results, prompting concerns over the potential of future fiscal plans. Meanwhile, both the European Central Bank and the Bank of Japan were widely expected to implement interest rate hikes in June, though the ECB's move was viewed as potentially being "one and done" against a backdrop of slowing growth and recession risks.
