- + Purchased: Xtrackers S&P 500 ETF, PIMCO GIS Emerg Mkts Opportunities, Structured Products.
- ↑ Increased: M&G Global Emerging Markets, Polar Capital Em Mkts Stars.
- Sold: Baillie Gifford American Acc, L&G US Equity ETF, iShares Core MSCI EM IMI ETF.

Within equities, switched the core index holding into a lower-cost equivalent. Trimmed emerging market equity to reduce exposure to concentrated indicies. Within fixed income, added to emerging market debt, funded by the equity reduction and existing liquidity holding, broadening the region's exposure beyond a concentrated equity benchmark. Within alternatives, we topped up on more structure products to return the sleeve to its target weight.

Commentary

In July, the prior month's de-escalation sharply reversed as the US and Iran exchanged fresh strikes and a renewed closure of the Strait of Hormuz drove oil back above $90, reviving inflationary pressure and lifting bond yields. Rate-cut expectations evaporated entirely, with markets moving to price one or two more hikes across the ECB, Federal Reserve and Bank of England this year. Policy tone nonetheless diverged: Lagarde signalled the ECB stood "ready to hike in September," while the Federal Reserve and Bank of England retained a "wait and see" stance. In the UK, ten-year gilt yields sit around 5% as Andy Burnham's talk of "fiscal flexibility," set against persistent inflation concerns, pushed the gilt market lower. In currencies, official intervention drove the yen higher, with the Bank of Japan on standby to act further. Equities were broadly steady, interrupted by a brief sell-off in software and semiconductor names after Chinese firms claimed materially cheaper production and token costs. Emerging markets rallied against this backdrop, led by a strong advance in Korean equities driving index concentration to record highs, before a correction late in the month. Attention remains fixed on the Strait of Hormuz, with inflation the abiding concern for global markets.
